CHALLENGES OF ADAPTIVE CHANGES IN ORGANISATIONS

The business world is subject to constant change. However, its unpredictability and complexity hide a critical fact that several changes for competitive and comparative advantage are reasonably visible to senior executives.

The Advanced Management Programme (AMP) at Management Development Institute Gurgaon (MDIG) ensures that senior management teams are able to make sense of predictable but drastic changes that can transform organisations and the whole ecosystem of competition and industry positioning. The challenges that senior management teams face in their respective organisations will be discussed and deliberated upon during the programme and solution-oriented competencies would be developed. We shall address and respond to these critical changes by identifying them, analyzing the inner tensions these changes generate, and providing guidance for their successful navigation.

With the pandemic almost over and the various facets of the pandemic having been exhibited / experienced, the world of business has woken up to a new reality, perhaps, characterized by major and longer-term supply chain disruptions (or even complete removal of supply chains) on account of free movement being curtailed, by country blocks applying trade embargo on some other country(s).

Organizations have started realizing that to create/build resilient (have in place) supply chains it is not just enough to simplify, streamline, reduce travel time/cut distance(s) between the supplier(s) and the customer(s), etc. but also be able to use the production/warehousing capabilities/units under lockdown conditions, perhaps using remote controls /robots (Internet of Things) by ensuring isolation/separation of the unaffected workforce from the affected workforce.

The programme shall also synthesize business leaders' experiences across applied question that organizations are confronting namely, how to recruit ethical and committed staff; how to design meaningful work; how to create work environment that support prosocial behavior; how to compensate employees to sustain their well-being; how to reskill employees for achieving organizational missions; and how to lead employees to engage in causes greater than themselves.

26th AMP 2023- At a Glance

26th AMP 2023 aims at creating an enabling environment for reflective observation, abstract conceptualization and application of recent developments in management at the picturesque and serene environs of the MDI campus. The four weeks, fully residential programme will allow the participants to disengage themselves from the day-to-day pulls and pressures, relocate on the campus and bask in the ambience of thinking, reflecting, learning and applying. Keeping in view the diverse set of responsibilities at the senior management level, the learning will be interdisciplinary in nature with national/international perspectives. AMP 2023, will help develop digital capabilities to improve business acumen, and map how new information (technologies) impact behavior and decision making. In addition, it will also focus on diverse areas of management thoughts and digital applications in human resource management (innovative hiring strategies, talent management and engagement), technology and its impact on banking and finance sector; like block chain technology, Internet of Things (IoT), strategic role of information technologies and enterprise systems related issues. Digital marketing and understanding the strategic use of information and its economic impact on consumer behavior and firm strategy; operations management; optimizing costs, quality and strategic foresight for competing and excelling globally. The AMP participants would learn to integrate corporate strategy and culture with organizational structure. They will learn how to manage the interface between strategy, marketplace, technology and regulatory framework.

Development of creative and lateral thinking

The primary purpose of the AMP is to spark debates and discussions among the participants of the Programme. The participants will be exposed to current analytical tools for assessing opportunities and risks in strategic planning and decision-making. The objective is to enable participants to get sound foundation of theoretical inputs and research advancements in management on the one hand and diverse views on the practical aspects of organizational management from industry practitioners on the other. In other words, the participants will have exposure to areas which are not necessarily connected to the day-to-day working in organizations, but will broaden the horizons of analysis and scenario building that are so essential in strategic management decision-making. Industry/ organization visits will be organized to expose the participants to the culture and the ambience of well-managed organizations in order to widen their perspectives and familiarity with various sectors of industry. The participants would also have the privilege of having inputs from diverse constituents such as eminent academicians, policy makers from the Govt., industry leaders and other thought leaders

These varied inputs will enable a participant to benchmark his/her own organizational practices with those of others and thus set the stage for effective strategic leadership in their respective organizations in contemporary digital age. Throughout the Programme, participants would be engaged in several group exercises with participants from other organizations, which will facilitate diagnosis of their strengths and weaknesses. This process will create a blueprint for the future course of effective leadership transformation in the digital age.
